

Ice-Cream

As several columnists have written, "You can't make this up." This is so true when it comes to Biden. About 5 days ago, the Federal Trade Commission was directed to start investigating why the ice cream machines at many McDonald's fast food restaurants were often broken.

Now you would probably think that this was another right-wing distortion of the truth. The fact of the matter is that it was reported by many liberal media outlets such as: NPR, CBS News, Yahoo, New York Times, FOX News, Wall Street Journal, and many news stations across the nation.

So if both the left and right, liberal and conservative are reporting on this investigation, we can probably believe that there is at least a kernel of truth behind it.

So why would this story come out five (5) days ago on September 2nd? While we can speculate, given the Biden administrations' past performance to deflect criticism of Biden's actions or performances, it would not be unreasonable to believe this is just another ploy to redirect people's attention.

In this case it would be to redirect attention away from the Afghanistan withdraw debacle.

Why? The answer is simple. The debacle was even greater than most of us believe. While the media hinted at a loss of US standing in the world and a loss of US credibility by our allies, until yesterday we did not comprehend the results of Biden's traitorous actions.

True, we knew about the military equipment and supplies, the large sums of money, and the thousand or so Americans, and our Afghan allies who supported us during the war that were left behind. We also know of the broken promises Biden made to get our Afghan allies out.

What we did not know is that Biden's inability to listen and follow advise, and his stubbornness to change his mind, lead to a decision to quickly leave Afghanistan without providing sufficient time for our allies to also prepare withdraw plans. In other words, Biden's actions were not only traitorous to the US but also to our allies and NATO.

Since the beginning of the Afghanistan War, some 60 nations have participated in the war. When Biden announced the August 31 withdraw deadline, the major allied forces from 7 countries included US, British, French, New Zealand, German, Turkish, Romanian, Italian, and Georgian military and civilian personnel. There were smaller groups from 9 other nations.

When Biden issued his pull out order, he did not notify the other nation forces that the US was pulling out. This left all the major and minor forces in Afghanistan in the same lurch. While the other nations sent troops in to evacuate their citizen, they did not have enough time to recover their own equipment and supplies.

In other words, Biden's decision and methodology, not only negatively affected US forces and our country, but also had similar disastrous effects on other forces and their nations.

Biden's debacle and that of his administration, should be grounds for treason, but more importantly, given the international effect on NATO countries and the mass killing that has already started with Afghans who supported us and we simply threw under the bus, charges of treason is not sufficient. Biden and his cronies violated not only 18 US Code 2441 – War Crimes, but also international law and thus should be brought before the International Criminal Court's War Crimes Tribunal.

Of the 11 crimes against humanity, Biden and his cronies are guilty of facilitating at least seven of the identifiable crimes:

1. murder
2. torture
3. imprisonment
4. rape and sexual violence
5. persecution on political, religious, racial and gender grounds
6. the enforced disappearance of persons
7. the inhumane act of knowingly causing great suffering or injury

Biden was told that these crimes would happen prior to issuing his order to withdraw. Thus he can be accused of premeditation. After the withdraw, he has made no attempt to preventing these criminal acts, nor has he shown any remorse, compassion for those left behind, or any attempt to protect Americans, other foreigners in Afghanistan, and our Afghan allies. His post withdraw actions and those of his cronies, also make them accessories after the fact.

Biden and his cronies are not innocent no matter how much they try to blame others for this international disaster. They are de facto wartime criminals and need to be brought before the International Criminal Court.
